Two new dining armchair and a premium belt, Obi designed by Ludovica+Roberto Palomba

Obi family, the outdoor seating collection by Ludovica+Roberto Palomba inspired by the belt of the traditional Japanese kimono, grows this year with the addition of two dining armchairs. Both are very similar: their structure is made of high resistance aluminium profile and the backrest is a reminiscence of the tight belt characteristic of this outdoor collection. The difference is in the legs. One of the dining armchairs has four slender, slightly cone-shaped legs, while the other has a sled base for further stability.

As for the rest of pieces in the family (easy chair, two-seater sofas, XL sofas and the varied assortment of modules), we have developed a signature Premium Belt: a new textured band carefully sewn by hand and wider than the original. The result is even more Japanese and elegant if possible.
