

Curio, Embracing Geometry. The new outdoor collection designed by Patrick Norguet.

Inspired by the concept of “curiosities,” those unique and fascinating objects that always arouse interest. With an aesthetic that fuses art, geometry, and history, Curio is presented as a contemporary ode to craftsmanship, where each piece embodies a sculptural and monumental presence.

The authenticity of the design is revealed in each of its details: its stylized aluminum frame, slim legs ending in a subtle, flared base, and a generous rope backrest that nestles the user in a radical and protective architecture, offering a sense of security and comfort.

“Curio is an invitation to discover the extraordinary in the everyday; each piece is intended as a tribute to curiosity and the unexpected beauty that comes from exploring new forms,” explains Norguet.

Authentic Design and Enveloping Comfort

Known for his innovative approach, Norguet’s work explores materials and forms imbued with energy and narrative. Curio exemplifies his philosophy, blending functionality and artistic audacity to create pieces that are both inviting and visually striking.

The collection’s enveloping backrest and sculptural lines reflect a deep understanding of ergonomics and aesthetics, ensuring that every piece offers unparalleled comfort while making a bold statement in any outdoor setting. “Through Curio, I sought to create designs that combine technique, history, and storytelling, while maintaining a focus on elegance and craftsmanship,” adds Norguet.

About POINT

With over 100 years of history, POINT stands as a global icon in outdoor furniture, deeply rooted in the Mediterranean art of living. Founded in 1920 in Xaló (Alicante, Spain), this family-owned company has transformed a humble wicker workshop into a celebrated international brand, renowned for its authenticity, craftsmanship, and innovative design. Guided by the pioneering vision of founder José Pons Pedro, and carried forward by four generations of the Pons family, POINT remains committed to quality and sustainability, blending traditional artistry with modern innovation. As an ambassador of premium Spanish design, POINT collaborates with world-class artisans and designers, partnering with luxury hospitality giants like Four Seasons, Shangri-La, and Hyatt Regency. Every material and detail reflects the legacy of a Mediterranean family that cherishes authenticity, enriching spaces with meaning and soul.

About Patrick Norguet

An icon of French design, Patrick Norguet approaches his work with a constant innovation that explores materials and forms charged with energy and dynamism. Renowned for his 'proposals' rather than simple designs, he creates pieces with an enveloping ergonomics, where functionality and aesthetic audacity meet. Norguet's work embodies his industrial design philosophy: each project goes beyond the search for the perfect line to capture the collective imagination and reflect cultural influences, creating products that fuse technique, history and narrative.
